

962-K1-536

Stuart Boersma (boersmas@cwu.edu), Department of Mathematics, Central Washington University, Ellensburg, WA 98926, Addison E Frey* (ffrey@alfred.edu), Division of Mathematics and Computer Science, Alfred University, Alfred, NY 14802, and Robert C Williams (fwilliams@alfred.edu), Division of Mathematics and Computer Science, Alfred University, Alfred, NY 14802. Computer Enhanced Instruction in Differential Equations.

In 1999 the Division of Mathematics at Alfred University received CCLI-NSF funding to establish a computer classroom consisting of 17 Gateway computers running Maple and Minitab. Although we eventually intend to use the classroom in a wide variety of courses, the initial focus has been in statistics and differential equations classes. In this talk we will discuss how Maple projects are being developed/adapted in our differential equations course. (Received September 15, 2000)