For the past four years, we have run the MPWR Seminar, a daylong mentoring and networking event for women in RUME (Research in Undergraduate Mathematics Education). Each year, we host 60-90 women at various career stages (graduate students, postdoctoral fellows, faculty and professionals outside of academic positions). In this poster, we provide insight into the latest iteration of the seminar, motivation for the seminar's existence and design, and the research we are exploring around the efficacy of the seminar.
