

1147-26-522

Alex Barron, Jose M. Conde-Alonso, Yumeng Ou and Guillermo Rey* (reyg@umn.edu).

Sparse domination and the strong maximal function.

We study the problem of dominating the dyadic strong maximal function by $(1, 1)$ -type sparse forms based on rectangles with sides parallel to the axes, and show that such domination is impossible. Our proof relies on an explicit construction of a pair of maximally separated point sets with respect to an appropriately defined notion of distance. (Received January 25, 2019)