Uniformization of Riemann Surfaces Revisiting a Hundred-Year-Old Theorem

Henri Paul de Saint-Gervais

Translated from the French by Robert Burns, York University, Toronto

In 1907, Paul Koebe and Henri Poincaré almost simultaneously proved the uniformization theorem: Every simply connected Riemann surface is isomorphic to the plane, the open unit disc, or the sphere. The present book offers an overview of the maturation process of this theorem and will be useful to mathematicians wishing to cast a glance back at the history of their discipline.
