

1012-62-129

Rusins Freivalds* (Rusins.Freivalds@mii.lu.lv), Institute of Mathematics and Computer Science, University of Latvia, Raina bulvaris 29, LV-1459 Riga, Latvia, Masahiro Miyakawa, Tsukuba College of Technology, 4-3-15 Amakubo, 305-0005 Tsukuba, Ibaraki, Japan, Hisayuki Tatsumi, Tsukuba College of Technology, 4-3-15 Amakubo, 305-0005 Tsukuba, Ibaraki, Japan, and Solvita Zarina, Institute of Mathematics and Computer Science, University of Latvia, Raina bulvaris 29, LV-1459 Riga, Latvia. Statistical differences between European and Japanese 2D digital art. Preliminary report.

We have been interested in data-analytic nonparametric methods for processing large amounts of visual data. Our new methods are based on implementation of learning theory methods in statistical research. We used our methods to find out some essential differences between the 2D digital art created by European (Latvian) and Japanese artists. (Received September 16, 2005)