
American Mathematical Society—Contributions

Dear Friends and Colleagues,

Every year through their philanthropy, our contributing members and friends demonstrate their passion for mathematics. They actively partner with the American Mathematical Society to advance mathematical research and scholarship globally and locally. Their generosity propels our mission and strengthens our ability to serve the interests of mathematicians everywhere.

In 2011, many people contributed to the AMS for the very first time. Other members and friends decided to renew or increase a commitment that they have made over the course of many years. Some gifts were directed toward immediate priorities, while others helped to build endowed funds that support long term goals. In all of these cases, our donors chose to invest in something that is important to them. Their return on investment is tangible and real. It appears in every sectional meeting, every conference, each peer-reviewed publication, and all of the membership benefits that are part of the mission and work of the American Mathematical Society.

To everyone whose name appears on these pages—including those who have chosen to remain anonymous—I want to say thank you! Your resolve to make a difference through your giving is working. It is having a positive impact that will be felt this year and into the future. We at the AMS appreciate and are grateful for your enduring commitment.
