Erdős Memorial Lecture

The Erdős Memorial Lecture is an annual invited address named for the prolific mathematician Paul Erdős (1913–1996). The lectures are supported by a fund created by Andrew Beal, a Dallas banker and mathematics enthusiast. The Beal Prize Fund, now US$100,000, is being held by the AMS until it is awarded for a correct solution to the Beal Conjecture (see link). At Mr. Beal’s request, the interest from the fund is used to support the Erdős Memorial Lecture.

James Maynard of Magdalen College will present the 2017 Erdős Memorial Lecture during the Spring Eastern Sectional Meeting at Hunter College, City University of New York, May 6–7, 2017. For more details, see link.
