

1143-03-196

Haim Horowitz* (haim@math.toronto.edu). New results and open problems on the definability of mad families.

The study of the definability of mad families and their relatives has seen rapid progress in the last few years. I'll discuss some recent results and work in progress, as well as some recent open problems in this area. (Received August 13, 2018)